

A DADDY isn't defined as the man who makes the child, but rather a man who extends his hands and time to help raise the child and gives his heart and love to the child!! BLOOD doesn't always make you a DADDY. Being a DADDY comes from the heart...any fool can make a baby, it takes a MAN to raise a child!

Father being very old and weak, while eating, dropped food on his shirt and trousers. Others diners watched him in disgust while his son was calm.

After he finished eating, his son who was not at all embarrassed, quietly took him to the wash room, wiped the food particles, removed the stains, combed his hair and fitted his spectacles firmly. When they came out, the entire restaurant was watching them in dead silence, not able to grasp how someone could embarrass themselves publicly like that.

The son settled the bill and started walking out with his father.

At that time, an old man among'st the diners called out to the son and asked him, "Don't you think you have left something behind?"

The son replied, "No sir, I haven't".

The old man retorted, "Yes, you have! You left a lesson for every son, and hope for every father".

The restaurant went silent.

Headwaters Real Estate Recap: MAY 2017

"Summer is nearly here! And the spring-time market has been a healthy one for home sales in the Headwater region of Dufferin, Caledon, Erin and Orangeville. Sales in the Headwaters remained pretty much the same in May, as it was in April. The big difference is the increase in inventory, which has eased the pressure on buyers who have much more selection now. There were 534 homes for sale in the Headwaters at the end of May, the highest inventory we have seen since October of 2015! This in turn, has slowed some of the crazy sale prices we saw in February and March. The market is now more balanced and has cooled slightly, even though sales remain strong. Happy June!"

10 perennials to plant for an infinitely beautiful garden

ROSES
 Roses bloom well in most Canadian climates, but specific varieties thrive roses better in certain locations. Be sure to ask an expert at your local nursery which strain will work best for you. Also be sure to watch for rust (an orange fungus) and blackspot (a disease that causes black splotches on leaves), both of which have a fondness for roses.

PEONIES
 Plant these delicate blooms in full sun at the correct depth; one to two inches below soil level. With proper care, peonies should flower for decades.

POPPIES
 Poppies thrive in cooler climates and go dormant around mid-summer. Scatter poppy seeds willy-nilly around the garden to fill in any spaces between larger plants.

IRISES
 Divide and plant irises between late July and late August to ready them for the following year. These flowers bloom in spring and last through early summer.

HYDRANGEAS
 These bulbous beauties come in many different colours — pink, purple, blue and chartreuse, to name a few. Come fall, chartreuse hydrangeas will begin to fade to white.

DAHLIAS
 Dahlias will thrive year over year in most parts of Canada provided their tubers are dug up and stored indoors in the winter. To extend their blooming season, start growing dahlia tubers indoors around April, and plant them outside when the weather and soil warms up (around May).

DAY LILIES
 Day lilies are an easy flower to grow—hey, beginners!—and tolerate most soil conditions. Bonus: They produce tons of bright flowers.

FOXGLOVES
 Foxglove seedlings can be planted right after purchase, or grown indoors starting in early spring. They should hit peak-bloom in late summer, and begin flowering again the following spring.

PURPLE CONEFLOWER
 Purple coneflowers are easy to grow, even in poor soil conditions. And if you want your garden teeming with butterflies and bees, plant these!

LUPINES
 Some varieties of lupines thrive better as annuals, so check with your nursery before purchasing seedlings intended for a perennial garden. Lupines also favour cool summers, and seeds should be chipped or soaked before planting.
